LEARNING COMMUNITIES: COLLABORATION ACROSS DISCIPLINES AND WITH STUDENT LIFE

The 6th annual Fall Faculty and Staff symposium will focus on how learning communities are fostering student engagement by means of an integrated curriculum and close collaboration with students and staff.

GUEST SPEAKER: DR. SCOTT EVENBECK

Scott Evenbeck was named Guttman Community College's Founding President in 2011. Previously, he served as professor of psychology and founding dean of University College at Indiana University-Purdue University. Long involved in designing, implementing, and assessing first-year experience programs for students, he has given more than 100 presentations at academic conferences, and he has written many articles and chapters on academic achievement and persistence.

COLLABORATIONS FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

Speakers: Faculty, Success Coaches, and Student Peer Mentors.

Campus community members will discuss a variety of topics, including:

- Benefits of peer mentorship
- Innovative and collaborative nature of learning communities
- How our learning communities compare with each other and with communities at other institutions
- What our data tell us about the importance of students feeling a sense of belonging
- How you can become more involved
