

A map of Long Island is shown in a light blue color against a dark blue background. The text "Pollution Prevention & Long Island Groundwater" is overlaid in a bold, black, sans-serif font.

Pollution Prevention & Long Island Groundwater

Save the Date

Meeting Date: Tuesday, May 24th, 10:00 AM to 3:30 PM

Location: LIU Post, Brookville, NY at the Hillwood Cinema Room

Admission is free and all are welcome!

From Solvents to Pharmaceuticals, from Pesticides to Personal Care Products How Innovation and Community Participation Can Help Protect our Drinking Water

EPA is proudly hosting the 7th meeting in the Long Island Groundwater Series. Our theme for this meeting, "Pollution Prevention and Long Island Groundwater," has generated tremendous interest and is sure to be well attended.

The Agenda includes six presentations, a 3-member panel discussion, and a moderated Question and Answer Session in the afternoon with at least 10 speakers prepared to answer your questions. Don't miss this opportunity to learn more about how Pollution Prevention can protect and help restore one of Long Island's most important resources – its' groundwater.

Speakers and representatives from Federal, state and county governments, non-profits, and universities will be available all day to network with the attendees. The modern Hillwood Cinema Room can comfortably hold 300 people and a cafeteria is conveniently located nearby.